About the Leise Kollektion

The outstanding features of the Leise Kollektion are its versatility, its formal clarity and exclusive material processing. The furniture is made of an exclusively manufactured, fine lamin board out of native coniferous wood, coated with a satin finished, coloured laminate on both sides. A process developed by Leise enables the exposure of the raw material along the edges for the first time.

The 'lamin board' is a fine variation of the so-called 'blockboard'. For the Leise Kollektion a special lamin board is manufactured, which complies with the specific demands of the visible edge processing and the exclusive use of domestic timber.

Irregularities at the polished wood edges, branches and fine cracks are signs of the natural material and not a defect.

For the care of the coloured laminate surfaces a kitchen towel (absorbent household paper) and a mild window cleaner are recommended. Direct exposure to wiping water on the wooden edges should be avoided.

The processed laminate is a high quality and resistant material. However, scratch marks can occur in the course of use, whereby the darker shades are naturally more susceptible to traces of use. Therefore a careful handling in everyday use, which should be based on the use and care of lacquer furniture, is recommended.

For the installation of the furniture on hard floors (wood, stone, tiles, linoleum) the use of the provided felt gliders is recommended. If you should convert the furniture and remove the felt gliders, the remaining glue can be removed from the laminate surface with concentrated orange or lemon cleaner or benzine.

For the use or storage of the products only rooms with indoor climate are suitable, because the furniture is made of solid wood and reacts to permanently acting high humidity.

All products are manufactured in authorized workshops in East Westphalia and Hesse. The delivery time is usually 6 weeks.

About the Leise design studio

In 2004 designer Knut Voelzke founded the Leise furniture label in Frankfurt am Main. Shortly thereafter his collection was chosen for the talent show of Frankfurt's fair Tendence and presented there for the first time, followed by exhibitions in Cologne, Stuttgart, Tokyo, Mumbai, Las Vegas and New York as well as several international design prizes.

Besides the development of furniture and products, the Leise design studio also designs and realises interiors for private and public spaces as well as fair and exhibition projects from a single exhibit up to international travelling exhibitions. The Leise design studio perceives quality and beauty as criteria, that are not limited to the useful life of things. Integrated design is understood as intelligent handling of materials, symbolic expression and sociocultural location.

Knut Voelzke traces the focus of his design studio back to his biography as manager of a workshop for interior fittings (master craftman's diploma 1996) as well as his studies at the Academy of Design and Crafts Muenster, followed by studies at the University of Art and Design Offenbach, where he also works as assistant lecturer since the summer semester 2010.
